

Suzanne Higgs is Professor at the School of Psychology, University of Birmingham, UK. She has a degree in Psychology, Philosophy and Physiology from the University of Oxford, UK and a PhD in Psychology from Durham University, UK. She worked as a Post-Doctoral researcher at Oxford University before moving to the University of Birmingham to take up a faculty position. Her research is focused on the psychobiological bases of appetite control. She is Editor in Chief of the journal Appetite and Past President of the Society for the Study of Ingestive Behavior.